

SATURDAY

NOVEMBER 21

10:00—5:00

Native Film Festival

Join us for a select and important offering of Native American films, each chosen for its unique perspective on the Native world!

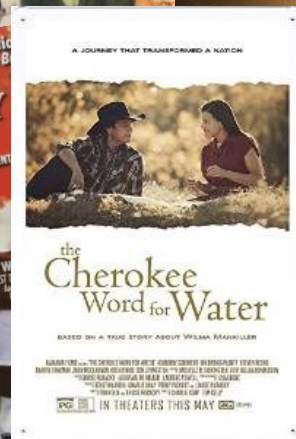

10:00-10:55	ORIGINAL PATRIOTS
11:05-12:00	CALIFORNIA'S LOST TRIBES
12:10-1:40	THE CHEROKEE WORD FOR WATER
1:50-3:15	SHOUTING SECRETS
3:25-4:55	A GOOD DAY TO DIE

Note: seating is limited—first come, first served!

STATE
INDIAN MUSEUM

2618 K Street
Sacramento, CA 95816
916 324-0971
www.parks.ca.indianmuseum

Original Patriots

When America joined the Allies in World War II in 1941, over 25,000 Native American people joined the war effort. Although their stories are rarely told, they are part of “The Greatest Generation.” California Native veterans share their stories and views on the cost of war. 2007

Presented in honor of Veteran’s Day.

California’s Lost Tribes

In a few short years, American Indians in California went from being the poorest people in the state to among the richest. California’s Lost Tribes is the first film to go behind the glitz & glamour of American Indian casinos to reveal the conflicts, historical underpinnings of tribal sovereignty, and the evolution of tribal gaming over the last thirty years. 2005

The Cherokee Word for Water

In 1980s rural Oklahoma, most houses still lacked running water. This film traces the work of Wilma Mankiller and Charlie Soap who joined forces to battle opposition and build a 16-mile waterline system using volunteers. Illuminates some of the work that led Wilma Mankiller to become the first modern female Chief of the Cherokee Nation. 2013

Shouting Secrets

A hopeful and heartwarming, universal story that takes place in a present day Native American family. It’s a story that is at once about the constancy and the fragility of love, as well as the importance of family. 2011

Not rated—minor language

A Good Day to Die

This film chronicles a movement that started a revolution and inspired a nation. By recounting the life story of Dennis Banks, Ojibwe, it tells the story of the birth and evolution of AIM, the American Indian Movement. Bitter and compelling, A Good Day to Die charts the issues and events that culminated in major armed confrontations at Custer & Wounded Knee, South Dakota. 2010

Original Patriots and Cherokee Word for Water will be available for sale in the museum store.